OVERVIEW

This was a tour with incredible diversity, varying habitats, enjoyable company, and a host of endemic southern African bird species. A brilliant first eight days of the tour were spent traversing the Western Cape, a truly fantastic birding region and endemics hotspot. Cape Point, the world-renowned Kirstenbosch National Botanical Garden, penguins, and semi-desert landscapes were all part of the Western Cape tour, while the sixteen-day Subtropical South Africa leg gave higher species numbers as well as extraordinary scenery and national parks. A total of 474 avian species were recorded on the tour, 106 of them being endemic to the southern African subregion.

Day 1, 9 October - Welcome to South Africa

The greater Cape Town area has many estuaries and river systems, which allow for good waterfowl in and around the city, and a few of the more common city birds were also seen while traveling to and from the guest house and the airport. Some of these were Kelp Gull, Hartlaub's Gull, African Sacred Ibis, Red-eyed Dove, Rock Kestrel, and Pied Crow.

The world-renowned Kirstenbosch National Botanical Garden serves as a brilliant introduction to birding the cape of South Africa. The fynbos floral kingdom is a really special biome and is home to many endemic bird species. We acquainted ourselves with southern African endemics such as Cape Sugarbird, Cape Canary, Cape Batis, Orange-breasted and Southern Double-collared Sunbirds, Jackal Buzzard, Cape Spurfowl, Cape Bulbul, and Cape Robin-Chat. The garden is also home to a family of Spotted Eagle-Owls, which can be spotted in some of the trees near the entrance. They had recently had a chick, which was very obliging for photographs. Other species that we encountered at the garden included Brown-backed Honeybird, Black Saw-wing, Helmeted Guineafowl, Lemon Dove, Speckled Pigeon, Speckled Mousebird, Swee Waxbill, and the entertaining Hadada Ibis.

Cape Sugarbird

Day 2, 10 October – False Bay, rockjumpers, and penguins

Unfortunately, due to very strong winds our scheduled pelagic trip for today was canceled; we hoped that by tomorrow the winds had calmed down. So we decided that after spending some time on day one to come to grips with Cape Town's avifauna we were ready to target some of the trickier birds that the Fynbos Biome has to offer. After breakfast a scenic drive to Rooi-Els with a couple of stops en route was the order of the morning. Cape Rock Thrush, Karoo Prinia, and Cape Bunting gave us some fantastic looks at a roadside stop, while a pair of African Oystercatchers were sitting pretty on a local beachside near our destination. Rooi-Els, one of the most famous birding sites on the Cape Town birding map, was as beautiful as ever, and birding was a pleasure. We kicked things off with a pair of Cape Siskins, which we soon followed up with sightings of Neddicky, Orange-breasted Sunbird, and Yellow Bishop. The resident Cape Rockjumpers didn't take too long to find, and once we located them we really did have nice, long looks. African Black Swift, Rock Kestrel, Jackal Buzzard, a few more Cape Sugarbirds, Rock Martin, and Grey-backed Cisticola were all encountered on the way back to the car. On our way back to Simonstown we stopped at the colony of African Penguins at Betty's Bay and enjoyed their great antics.

Day 3, 11 October – Cape Peninsula and Strandfontein

Sadly for the group our pelagic was called off completely, and we were only left dreaming about what could have been. Instead of heading out for the pelagic we birded both the Strandfontein sewage works and the Cape Point section of Table Mountain National Park. The famous sewage works were in form once again and produced some fantastic waterfowl for the group to enjoy. A mixed flock of aerial-feeding species greeted us in the open grassy section on the way in; Banded and Brown-throated Martins, Pearl-breasted, Greater Striped, White-throated, and Barn Swallows as well as White-rumped, African Palm, and Little Swifts were all in attendance. Little Rush Warbler showed well in a small pool alongside us. Arguably the most amazing sightings were the flamboyance of both Greater and Lesser Flamingos taking flight alongside us. Some of the common waterfowl were Spur-winged Goose, Cape Teal, Little Grebe, Red-knobbed Coot, Yellow-billed Duck, and Common Moorhen, while Red-billed Teal, Southern Pochard, White-faced

Whistling Duck, Black-winged Stilt, and Pied Avocet were around in smaller numbers. We encountered both thick-knee species, Spotted and Water Thick-knees. Waders were also encountered in decent numbers; the likes of Common Ringed and Three-banded Plovers were running around on their short legs, while Common Greenshank and Bar-tailed Godwit were 'standing tall'. Others included Ruddy Turnstone, Curlew Sandpiper, and Little Stint. Cape Point was as beautiful as ever in the afternoon light. In addition to the beauty of Cape Point highlights included Cape Gannet, White-chinned Petrel, Cape fur seal, and a very confiding Cape Grassbird.

Day 4, 12 October – Cape Town to the West Coast

Traveling up the West Coast brings a large number of exciting species into the fray. En route to the West Coast National Park, via Darling, we made a number of stops to enjoy a few excellent species, including Southern Black Korhaan, a displaying Cape Clapper Lark, Bokmakierie, Malachite Sunbird, and European Bee-eater. Once again the beautiful West Coast National Park really gave a good showing of birds, starting with a few Great White Pelicans soaring overhead in the morning light. African Marsh Harrier also cruised over, while the Abrahamskraal waterhole delivered African Spoonbill, Cape Weaver, Southern Red Bishop, Yellow and White-throated Canaries, and Black-winged Kite. The Geelbek area was enjoyable, and the gardens gave us sightings of Southern Fiscal as well as Cardinal Woodpecker. We encountered a few other terrestrial species such as Cape Spurfowl and the gigantic Common Ostrich, which were great to see in their natural environments. The Seeberg hide produced a few brilliant coastal species, which included hundreds of Common Terns, a few Caspian Terns, Whimbrel, Sanderling, Ruff, and Grey, White-fronted, and Kittlitz's Plovers. A Black Harrier finally showed itself toward the end of the afternoon much to the delight of everyone in the group – a brilliant end to a cracking day!

Day 5, 13 October - Langebaan to the Karoo

Starting things nice and early in Langebaan with a packed breakfast and a Grey-winged Francolin shouting at us from across the road, we headed up to do some birding in the Vredenburg area. Our main targets for the early morning would be Cape Long-billed Lark, Sickle-winged Chat, Capped Wheatear, and Blue Crane. We managed to find all of them, including truly stunning sightings of the tricky Cape Long-billed Lark as well as South Africa's national bird, Blue Crane. Other species we saw were African Stonechat, Anteating Chat, and Pied Starling. The Velddrif salt pans were our next stop, where South African Shelduck showed well, while all the usual waders were also present. The highlights of the pans were a couple of the near-endemic Chestnut-banded Plovers that enjoy the salinity of the pans in this area. After lunch we started our journey east through the mountains of Ceres and into the 'Klein (small) Karoo', as it is called. Here we would stay south of the Tankwa Karoo National Park for two days. Arriving in the Karoo late that afternoon, we already started to pick up a few species typical of this area; these were Namaqua Warbler, Pale-chanting Goshawk, and Karoo Scrub Robin.

Day 6, 14 October - Full day birding the Tankwa Karoo area

A beautiful, cool morning in the Karoo can't really be described, not a cloud in the sky and hardly a sound can be heard. A walk before breakfast gave us nice views of the tricky Karoo Eremomela as well as Karoo Chat, Large-billed Lark, and Bokmakierie. After breakfast we birded the greater Tankwa area. Pale-chanting Goshawks were one of the more common raptors, while the open, semi-arid landscape was home to many different larks, chats, and other terrestrial species. We found the likes of Tractrac Chat, Red-capped, Spike-heeled, and Karoo Larks, and Grey-backed Sparrow-Lark. Dusky Sunbird and Rufous-eared Warbler were hopping about among some of the small scrub alongside the road. A picnic area next to the road was a pretty decent spot to keep an eye open for the likes of Fairy Flycatcher, Pririt Batis, White-throated Canary, and White-backed Mousebird. These all showed well, while Layard's Warbler was giving us a runaround.

Day 7, 15 October - Karoo to Cape Town

A final morning in these semi-arid parts of South Africa was to be one of the best mornings of the Western Cape leg of the tour. This being mostly a travel day we didn't have too much time, but we did well with the time we had. The highlights of the morning were a couple of Namaqua Sandgrouse coming in to drink at a nearby waterhole and a pair of Karoo Korhaans crossing the road in front of us – both equally special and a perfect Karoo send-off! Some of the group caught up with Layard's Warbler at one of the picnic spots on the way back towards Ceres, while the incredible Bainskloof Pass gave us some opportunities to get our eyes on the Cape endemic Victorin's Warbler. The last birding spot of the day was the Paarl Mountain Local Nature Reserve, where Cape Sugarbird, Swee Waxbill, Streaky-headed Seedeater, and the sought-after Protea Canary were all seen. The sighting of the latter was unfortunately very brief, which left only unsatisfactory views for some.

Karoo Korhaan

Day 8, 16 October – Cape Town to Durban

The Subtropical South Africa leg of our South African tour was about to get under way; it was a hop, skip, and a jump across to Durban by plane, and in terms of birds it would almost feel like we were in a different country. Our overnight accommodation was in Umhlanga Rocks, north of Durban and an area with some pretty decent birds. We decided to spend some time birding the gardens that afternoon and really did start to acquaint ourselves with some eastern South African species. White-eared Barbet, African Paradise Flycatcher, Violetbacked and Black-bellied Starlings, Bronze Mannikin, Fork-tailed Drongo, Red-capped Robin-Chat, and Golden-tailed Woodpecker were all around to keep us occupied for the whole afternoon.

Day 9, 17 October – Travel to Sani Valley Lodge

Breakfast birding was done at the stunning Oribi Gorge. A cracking little African Pygmy Kingfisher got our birding underway. We grabbed some nice visuals of Forest Canary as well as Olive Sunbird and Cape Batis during breakfast. A brief walk along the beautiful forested trails gave us the opportunity to see the likes of Dark-backed Weaver, Square-tailed Drongo, Green Wood Hoopoe, and the fabulous Narina Trogon. Knysna Turaco proved to be a little trickier, and we only managed to get some of the group to see this South African endemic. Later that morning we were rewarded with stunning looks at no less than four Blue Swallows at a mist belt grassland location on the way to Underberg. We also stopped at the Ingeli Forest to target a few more forest species before the day was done. We managed to pick up Yellow-throated Woodland Warbler, Grey Cuckooshrike, African Dusky Flycatcher, and the sought-after Orange Ground Thrush. White-stared Robin was glimpsed crossing the road, but no perched visuals were had.

Day 10, 18 October – Sani Pass

One of the most enjoyable days of the tour was the day when we were going up the Sani Pass into Lesotho. With the professional services of Stuart Mclean we not only managed to connect with all of our targets for the day but had a great time learning about Lesotho and the southern Drakensberg. We started off the birding on the South African side of the border and connected with the likes of Red-necked Spurfowl, Buff-streaked Chat, Cape Grassbird, and the tricky Bush Blackcap. The latter (pictured below), being one of South Africa's endemics, absolutely loves the oldwood tree. We stopped at the foot of the Sani Pass to enjoy some coffee and breakfast while on the lookout for Gurney's Sugarbird. We found the sugarbird as well as Wailing Cisticola, Sentinel Rock Thrush, Greater Double-collared Sunbird, and Long-billed Pipit. We started our ascent, and soon we were half way up and the view was already breathtaking. We pulled off a few times on the way up in search of more targets. Drakensberg Siskin as well as Drakensberg Rockjumper were both very confiding, and amazing sightings of both these endemics were thoroughly enjoyed. Once we had arrived at the summit and entered into Lesotho proper we encountered White-necked Raven, Ground Woodpecker, and Southern Bald Ibis, and it didn't take long to pick up Mountain Pipit. Bearded Vulture, however, required us to drive a fair distance into Lesotho on some really windy and steep roads – but once we found the vulture it was definitely worth it. We were also rewarded with a nice sighting of African Rock Pipit as well as Grey Tit on the way back towards South Africa. Later that afternoon, once back in South Africa, we gave Barratt's Warbler one more go and finally got some decent visuals of this ultimate skulker. We came across a few nice mammals throughout the day as well – all seen on the South African side of the pass: grey rhebok, southern reedbuck, common eland, red hartebeest, blesbok, and chacma baboon.

Bush Blackcap

Day 11, 19 October - Underberg to Eshowe

We enjoyed a restful start this morning with a walk around the Sani Valley Lodge grounds. Wing-snapping Cisticolas were calling all over while a stunning pair of Grey-crowned Cranes landed nearby. Long-tailed Widowbird, Pied Starling, and Intermediate, Great, and Little Egrets were all common around the beautiful lodge grounds. Then we headed east to the town of Eshowe, obviously with many stops along the way. One of our first stops was to pick up Wattled Crane, which occurs sparsely in the Himeville area. We managed to locate a pair with a chick and then were rewarded with a Secretarybird sighting as well. Our next stop was Bulwer, where we picked up lunch and visited the Marutswa Forest. This forest is home to a really good variety of forest and mixed woodland species, and even though we only had a short amount of time here we managed visuals of a few goodies. We could hear the calls of Blue-mantled Crested Flycatcher, Terrestrial Brownbul, and Sombre Greenbul from the forest trail, and with some patience we got some enjoyable visuals of all of them. The highlight of Marutswa Forest was seeing a group of five Cape Parrots flying around the tops of the tall trees, squawking away. Before we left we picked up Goldenbreasted Bunting and had a quick African Harrier-Hawk sighting.

Day 12, 20 October – Birding Ongoye, Mtunzini, and Amatikulu

We headed off to Ongoye Forest fairly early that morning with packed breakfasts in search of some of the trickier forest species, including Green Barbet. Unfortunately we were hit with a morning of bad weather and had to bird in rainy and misty conditions for a little while before things cleared. One of the most enjoyable birds of the day showed really early on, Purplecrested Turaco. We decided to explore some of the open grassland and forest fringes at the top of Ongoye Forest, hoping things would clear in the forest. Barn and Lesser Striped Swallows, Common House Martin, Striped Pipit, Buff-streaked Chat, and White-necked Raven all showed well. A pair of Yellow-throated Longclaws flitted across the road in front of us in the misty conditions. We also birded one of the nearby bridges to the north of the forest itself and picked up some lowveld species, which included Yellow-bellied Greenbul, White-browed Scrub Robin, Amethyst and White-bellied Sunbirds, and Black-backed Puffback. Green Barbet did eventually play ball once the mist had cleared, as too did the stunning Chorister Robin-Chat. We then headed toward the coast for lunch at Mtunzini and managed to pick up Palm-nut Vulture at the big raffia palms on the way. A local guide, Junior Gabela, spent the afternoon showing us the hotspots in the Amatikulu Nature Reserve. We did well, connecting with Swamp Nightjar as well as the likes of African Green Pigeon, White-fronted Bee-eater, Yellow-fronted Canary, and both Croaking and Palecrowned Cisticolas.

Day 13, 21 October – Eshowe to St Lucia

We spent one more morning in Eshowe, exploring the Dlinza Forest Aerial Boardwalk, which is located right in the town itself. This is a beautiful forest that holds great bird species. However, the canopy tower area was definitely on the quiet side in terms of movement and activity, and unfortunately we only managed to record Eastern Bronze-naped Pigeon on call. But we did have cracking views of Spotted Ground Thrush, feeding and preening mere meters from us on the forest floor. What a bird for the morning! Other species recorded that morning included Yellow-billed Kite, Cape Batis, African Emerald Cuckoo, Trumpeter Hornbill, Lemon Dove, Dark-capped Bulbul, Yellow-rumped Tinkerbird, Grey-headed Bushshrike, Green-backed Camaroptera (or 'Camera operator', as it was commonly referred to on the tour), and Woolly-necked Stork. We departed for St Lucia, another coastal location that offers excellent birding along its estuary, the coastline, and small patches of thickets and woodland. The first stop was at the bridge over the estuary as you enter the town; here we picked up some new species for our trip, including a good few weavers. The smart-looking Southern Brown-throated Weaver along with Lesser Masked Weaver showed well in full display while building their nests. We picked up a few nice swifts and swallows too, namely Lesser Striped Swallow, White-rumped Swift, Little Swift, and African Palm Swift. The mouth of the estuary was also enjoyable, where African Fish Eagle and African Pied Kingfisher were catching fish while a small tern roost nearby held Greater Crested, Sandwich, Caspian, Common, and Little Terns. We were lucky enough to pick up Western Osprey scouring the area. Some other species on site were Yellow-billed Stork, Pink-backed Pelican, African Spoonbill, and the bizarre-looking Hamerkop.

Spotted Ground Thrush

Day 14, 22 October – iSimangaliso Wetland Park

An early morning walk around town and the iGwala Gwala Trail produced some real treats. Amazing sightings were had of Livingstone's Turaco clambering around above us in a fig tree. Nearby we also recorded Violet-backed Starling, Yellow-bellied Greenbul, Lesser Honeyguide, and Spectacled Weaver. Both Yellow-breasted and Rudd's Apalises had been recorded on the day before, but we added them to today's list as well with enjoyable sightings on the iGwala Gwala Trail. The trail also produced Square-tailed Drongo, Eastern Nicator, Crowned Hornbill, Dark-backed Weaver, and a brilliant Crested Guineafowl. Then we entered the iSimangaliso Wetland Park for a day's birding as the day was heating up. Raptors, enjoying the heat, were out in good numbers. In addition to Yellow-billed Kite and Common Buzzard at one point there were three 'Red Data' species above us, Crowned Eagle, Martial Eagle, and Southern Banded Snake Eagle. The park was dry, but we did manage to locate Woodward's Batis, Yellow-rumped Tinkerbird, Red-backed Mannikin, and a troop of banded mongooses that seemed to be in a hurry to get somewhere.

Southern Banded Snake Eagle

Day 15, 23 October – St Lucia to Mkhuze Game Reserve

One could easily spend a few days around St Lucia town as well as the estuary, as there is really some great birding and much to see. There were a number of shorebirds and terns at the estuary, including White-fronted Plover, Ruff, Wood Sandpiper, Caspian Tern, and Whiskered Tern. The surrounding thickets and forest patches turned up Grey Sunbird, Black-bellied Starling, and another Southern Banded Snake Eagle directly over our accommodation as we were pulling out en route north to Mkhuze Game Reserve. We stopped off at the Muzi pans on the way north. The pans themselves were still fairly empty, but birding was good; Collared Pratincole, Wire-tailed Swallow, Knob-billed Duck, Black, Squacco, and Goliath Herons, Lesser Flamingo, African Openbill, and Diederik Cuckoo were all on display. One of the last species that we picked up that day was the larger-than-life Trumpeter Hornbill.

Day 16, 24 October - Mkhuze Birding

One of my personal favorite birding locations in South Africa is Mkhuze Game Reserve. It offers extremely good mixed woodland, thicket, and sand forest habitat and has a bird species list of over 440 species to date. A bit of rain around here, though, meant that we couldn't quite fit in the kind of birding that we wanted to, but still we recorded the likes of Crested Guineafowl, Crested Francolin, Common Scimitarbill, Sabota Lark, Tawny and Wahlberg's Eagles, Southern Yellow-billed Hornbill, and the raucous Green Wood Hoopoe. Acacia Pied Barbet and Red-chested Cuckoo were nice distractions on the way into town for lunch. Our lunch spot had some decent birding to keep us occupied, including a lovely African Paradise Flycatcher on a nest, Purple-banded Sunbird, and Blue Waxbill. Our afternoon was spent visiting some of the bird hides in Mkhuze, although rain did hamper our progress again. But we did enjoy African Pygmy Kingfisher, Green-winged Pytilia, and Cape Starling as well as White-crested Helmetshrike.

Day 17, 25 October – Mkhuze to Wakkerstroom

The year 2016 had brought some rather serious drought to many parts of South Africa, but we were lucky enough to have rain while we were in Mkhuze. The big pan in the southern part of the reserve, Nsumo Pan, started to fill up and provided us with an interesting morning's birding. On the way to the pan we bumped into a family of Senegal Lapwing and had our first elephant sightings of the tour. After some searching we located a single Pel's Fishing

Owl in one of the large fever trees surrounding the pan. Other species here were Marabou Stork, Western Osprey, Emerald Spotted Wood Dove, and Kittlitz' Plover. We didn't spend too much time here, as we had a fair way to travel to the rolling grasslands of Wakkerstroom. Searches for Denham's Bustard en route proved fruitless.

Day 18, 26 October – Wakkerstroom Birding

Today we had an early start with a full day's birding ahead. With the help of our specialist BirdLife South Africa-qualified guide, Norman, we did well early on to locate Yellow-breasted Pipit in full display to the south of Wakkerstroom town. We added a few others along our way, including Long-tailed Widowbird, Ant-eating Chat, African Stonechat, Pied Starling, and Malachite Sunbird, heading north to some of the known locations for the trickier lark species that were big targets for the day. Both Rudd's and Botha's Larks were found surprisingly easily and were real highlights for the morning. Rudd's Lark had been giving many birders the slip over the last few days, but we found the bird and were able to get prolonged views. Botha's Lark was a special sighting as the bird had three chicks, and we could watch them feed for a few minutes. Other targets for the day included White-bellied Bustard, Southern Bald Ibis, and Red-winged Francolin. We found all of these as well as the likes of Lanner Falcon, Spotted Eagle-Owl, and Swainson's Spurfowl.

Rudd's Lark

Day 19, 27 October – Wakkerstroom to Kruger

Today was a travel day as we drove from Wakkerstroom down the escarpment to Kruger National Park. We entered Kruger at the Malelane Gate, where we spent quite a bit of time birding from the bridge. The bridge is always a brilliant spot to pick up herons, egrets, and storks and, of course, also hippopotamus, African elephant, and Nile crocodile. A pair of Saddle-billed Storks were standing handsomely in great light for all to see, while Striated Heron, Pied Kingfisher, and Grey Heron were all attempting successfully to catch a few fish. The bridge provided a nice vantage point, and we really did see a good number of bird species: Great, Little, and Western Cattle Egrets, Water Thick-knee, African Spoonbill, Black-headed Heron, Common Sandpiper, Grey Go-away-bird, and African Stonechat. Later in the afternoon on the way to Skukuza Rest Camp we encountered a few acacia species, namely Magpie Shrike, Burchell's Starling, and the brightly-colored Lilac-breasted Roller.

Day 20, 28 October – Kruger National Park

Today we enjoyed a full day's birding of the greater Skukuza area of the Kruger National Park in an open safari vehicle. We set off at 6 a.m. this morning in order to really get the best out of this amazing area. A few of the more common species that we would see throughout the day started things off; these included Greater Blue-eared Starling, White-browed Scrub Robin, Rattling Cisticola, Marico Sunbird, and Golden-breasted Bunting. Mosque Swallow was a nice species to pick up in southern Kruger, while good numbers of Vultures, including Hooded, White-backed and Lappet-faced, were all around along the Sabie River east of the rest camp. We slowly but surely kept adding new species to our tally, mostly mixed-woodland-loving passerines such as Brown-crowned Tchagra, Long-billed Crombec, Orange-breasted Bushshrike, and Chinspot Batis. Both Sunset Dam and the Lower Sabie region were productive and allowed sightings of African Darter, Natal Spurfowl, Black Stork, Red-billed Buffalo Weaver, Bateleur, White-headed Vulture, Red-faced Cisticola, and Wahlberg's Eagle. A real treat was bumping into four Southern Ground Hornbills; these birds were calm and not too irritated by our presence. Mammals also play a huge role in a visit to the Kruger National Park - today we enjoyed a really good number of mammals, which included African elephant, plains zebra, hippopotamus, giraffe, African buffalo, common duiker, bushbuck, waterbuck, greater kudu, lion, slender mongoose, chacma baboon, and vervet monkey.

Day 21, 29 October - Kruger National Park to Dullstroom.

We spent a final morning birding in the brilliant Skukuza grounds, picking up the likes of Klaas's Cuckoo, Bearded Scrub Robin, Ashy Flycatcher, Scarlet-chested and Collared Sunbirds, Crowned Hornbill, and a few more Southern Black Tits, as well as White-browed Robin-Chat. Brown-headed Parrot and Purple-crested Turaco showed well around Skukuza as well, both very enjoyable to watch feeding on some of the berries of the tall trees. A few other new trip species that morning before we left Kruger included African Grey Hornbill, Purple Roller, and the large Bearded Woodpecker. A drive through the scenic escarpment to the highveld grasslands of Dullstroom brought quite a change in climate from the warm, dry Kruger National Park. Dullstroom, being at a much higher altitude, is often colder and misty and certainly brings more than a handful of new bird species. We didn't have much time to bird around Dullstroom before it got dark, but we did put in some time around town and the Dullstroom Nature Reserve. Long-tailed Widowbird, Yellow-billed Duck, Hamerkop, and a few Blue Cranes were highlights for us before the sun set on an excellent day.

Day 22, 30 October - Dullstroom to Rust de Winter

Before leaving Dullstroom we picked up Olive Thrush and got visuals of the African Olive Pigeons that live in the lodge grounds. The De Berg Road was enjoyable as usual, and Eastern Long-billed Lark, Yellow-breasted Pipit, Red-winged Francolin, and Red-collared Widowbirds were easy to come by, while a single Wattled Crane was special. Later in the day we stopped at several spots closer to Pretoria. These included Mabusa Nature Reserve, which is a stunning reserve with broad-leafed woodland habitat. Here we were rewarded with sightings of Ovambo Sparrowhawk, Pearl-spotted Owlet, Short-toed Rock Thrush, and Green-capped Eremomela. The reserve holds a few special birds too, such as Half-collared Kingfisher and White-backed Night Heron, but we were unfortunately not able to connect with the latter. The kingfisher showed well to the whole group, and we enjoyed perched views and several flybys. We arrived safely at Zenzele River Lodge after picking up Namaqua Dove, Blue Waxbill, Red-billed Firefinch, Burnt-necked Eremomela, and the stunning Burchell's Starling.

Day 23, 31 October – Rust de Winter – Johannesburg, flight home

Our last day of the tour was to be spent in an area that traditionally produces the goods. We birded both the Rust de Winter roadside routes and the Zaagkuildrift Road and Kgomo-Kgomo floodplain. We managed to notch up a number of good new species for the trip, including some acacia specials: Red-headed Weaver, Southern Pied Babbler, Blackchested Prinia, Marico Flycatcher, and a smart Little Sparrowhawk in the large acacias near the lodge. Some fun additions were Brown Snake Eagle, Northern Black Korhaan, Desert Cisticola, and the absolutely gorgeous Crimson-breasted Shrike. A brilliant morning to end the intense birding for the tour! We finished with a lovely lunch at the Pretoria National Botanical Garden before heading to the airport for our international flights.
